The background of the image is a dense field of Breccia Aurora stones. These are irregularly shaped, angular rock fragments in shades of tan, beige, and light brown. Some stones show darker, reddish-brown or yellowish mineral inclusions or staining, particularly on their surfaces. The stones are packed closely together, creating a textured, natural stone appearance.

The image shows a close-up, top-down view of a large number of smooth, rounded river stones. The stones are densely packed and vary in size and color, including shades of grey, blue, white, and some with light brown or tan spots. The lighting is even, highlighting the smooth, polished surfaces of the rocks. In the upper right corner, the word "Bardiglio" is written in a large, white, sans-serif font, partially overlapping the stones.

The image shows a close-up, top-down view of a large number of small, smooth, rounded pebbles. The pebbles are densely packed and vary in color, primarily consisting of shades of grey, light grey, and off-white. Some pebbles have a slightly darker, almost blackish-grey hue, while others are a pale, almost white color. The overall texture is granular and uniform. In the upper right corner, the word "Bardiglio" is written in a large, bold, white, sans-serif font, which stands out against the darker background of the pebbles.

The image shows a close-up, top-down view of a large quantity of small, reddish-brown stones. The stones are irregularly shaped, mostly rounded or sub-angular, and vary in size from approximately 2 to 10 millimeters. They are densely packed together, creating a textured, granular surface. The color is a rich, earthy brown with some darker and lighter variations, suggesting a natural mineral composition. The lighting is even, highlighting the individual facets and textures of the stones.

The background of the image is a close-up of a natural stone surface, likely quartzite, known as 'Quarzo Bianco'. The stone is composed of numerous irregular, light-colored (white to light beige) crystalline fragments embedded in a darker, tan-colored matrix. The overall appearance is highly textured and granular.
